NFL Team Executive Summary Report

Baltimore Ravens

Injured: Lamar Jackson (QB – hamstring), Ronnie Stanley (OT – ankle), Marlon Humphrey (CB – calf), Roquan Smith (LB – hamstring), Nate Wiggins (CB – elbow), Nnamdi Madubuike (DT – neck, IR), Broderick Washington Jr. (DT – IR), Travis Jones (DT), Kyle Van Noy (LB), Ar'Darius Washington (DB).
Over Performers: Depth pieces like DeAndre Hopkins (WR) and rookie Malaki Starks (DB) stepping into bigger roles.
Under Performers: Lamar Jackson (sack issues, league-worst rate), Derrick Henry (3 fumbles in 3 weeks), and the overall defense (coverage breakdowns, run fits).
The Ravens are being gutted by injuries with multiple defensive linemen, starters in the secondary, and even Lamar Jackson sidelined. Jackson's hamstring adds to concerns after he'd already been sacked 15 times through four games, while Derrick Henry's fumbling problems have stalled drives. Defensively, losses to the line and secondary have left coverage holes and shaky run defense. Still, depth players and rookies like Malaki Starks are filling in admirably, but unless stars get healthy soon and turnovers clean up, Baltimore's season risks slipping away.

Buffalo Bills

Injured: Ed Oliver (DT), Matt Milano (LB), Spencer Brown (RT), Tyler Bass (K), DeWayne Carter (DT), Maxwell Hairston (CB).
Suspended: Michael Hoecht (OB), Larry Ogunjobi (DT).
Over Performers: Josh Allen (QB), James Cook (RB).
Under Performers: Defensive Front. Injured players (Carter and Oliver) and suspended players (Ogunjobi & Hoecht) has stretched their depth.
The Buffalo Bills are unbeaten but stretched thin. DTs Larry Ogunjobi and Michael Hoecht are suspended six games for PEDs, while injuries have sidelined key defenders Ed Oliver, Matt Milano, and rookie DeWayne Carter (season-ending Achilles), plus RT Spencer Brown and CB Maxwell Hairston. Kicker Tyler Bass also remains out. Despite the attrition, Josh Allen continues to pace the team with timely passing and rushing scores, while James Cook has emerged as a reliable playmaker, topping 100 rushing yards with a TD in Week 4. Defensive depth is a concern, but the Bills' resilience and star power have kept them perfect so far.
